

DISTRICT OF NEVADA

Order Directing Plaintiff to Show Cause Why This Case Should Not Be Dismissed for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction or Improper Venue

KENNETH G. McDONALD,

V.

Defendants

Moreover, there does not appear to be a good reason to enter a temporary restraining order against the defendants until they have been served with the complaint, summonses, and motion and have been afforded an opportunity to respond.

1 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that plaintiff Kenneth G. McDonald shall serve on the 2 defendants the summonses, complaint, and all papers filed in this case, including this order, as
3 required under the applicable Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. McDonald shall also file a 4 certificate confirming proper service of those documents on the defendants.

5 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that McDonald shall show cause in writing as to how the 6 federal District Court in Nevada has personal jurisdiction over the defendants and how this court
7 is the proper venue for his suit. If McDonald prefers, he may request that I transfer this case to 8 the District of Arizona. If McDonald does not show cause how this court has jurisdiction and is 9 the proper venue by May 6, 2019, I will dismiss this case without prejudice.

10 DATED this 19th day of April, 2019.
